AEQUITAS is paying close attention to environmental issues associated with its clients' projects in Kazakhstan, primarily in the subsoil and energy sectors. The firm's experience in this area encompasses advice on regulatory issues, legal evaluation of environmental risks and in- and out-of-court client representation in environmental disputes settlement. The firm treasures its expertise in this area, which includes assistance to ExxonMobil Corporation in preparing a classifier of environmental and other legislation governing environmental issues and representation of JV Tengizchevroil LLP in the Supreme Court of the Republic of Kazakhstan in connection with a dispute over environmental damage compensation. AEQUITAS provided consulting services to Offshore Kazakhstan International Operating Company (OKIOC) implementing an oil exploration project in the Caspian region.

The key clients using AEQUITAS environmental legal services are the leading local and international companies active in the construction, industrial production and subsoil use sectors in Kazakhstan.

One of AEQUITAS latest major projects was the work to improve the local environmental legislation. In the framework of this project, the firm's lawyers developed the environmental legislation improvement concept and drafted amendments to a number of legislative and subordinate acts of the Republic of Kazakhstan: Environmental Code, Administrative Code, Tax Code, Subsoil Law, etc.
